

NUMBER 80

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT,
GROVER CLEVELAND,
OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,
THOMAS A. HENDRICKS,
OF INDIANA.

ELECTORS.
For State at Large.
REN S. ROBINSON,
W. B. FLEMING.
District Electors.

- 1-Rhea Boyd, of McCracken county.
- 2-Cromwell Adair, of Union county.
- 3-John S. Rhea, of Logan county.
- 4-Sam B. Berry, of Marion county.
- 5-J. P. Smith, Jr., of Jefferson county.
- 6-Lessie T. Applegate, of Henderson co.
- 7-Ira Julian, of Franklin county.
- 8-G. N. Robinson, of Shelby county.
- 9-S. S. Savage, of Boyd county.
- 10-John P. Salyers, of Morgan county.
- 11-Rollin Hart, of Adair county.

In Webster county it has been agreed to let the former primary election stand, and not hold another on Oct. 13. Mr. Laffoon's majority in the county was 287.

"The Campaign" is the name of a new Republican paper which has been started at Owensboro to run until after the November election. It will be edited by F. H. Roberts and will be published every Saturday.

The Enquirer is no longer a "half and half" but is putting in hard ticks for Cleveland, Hendricks and Reform. The Ohio election comes off Tuesday week and if the State goes Republican by 1000 majority the followers of Blaine will have cause to congratulate themselves.

Esq. D. E. Randolph, of this city, has consented to allow the use of his name as a candidate for Equalizer of Taxes. A nomination will be made by the primary Oct. 13. Esq. Randolph has had large experience in that line of business and has an extensive acquaintance with the whole district and no better man could be chosen.

Owensboro Messenger, The New York World of Saturday prints the following interesting betting statistics on the Presidential election. They are great big back-logs which show which way the cyclone is moving:

- One thousand dollars even Cleveland carries New York by fifty thousand majority.
- One thousand to five hundred that he carries New York by ten thousand majority.
- One thousand even he carries Ohio.
- Twenty-five hundred to seven thousand five hundred he carries Iowa.
- One thousand to four hundred that he carries New Jersey.
- Five thousand to three thousand five hundred he will be elected.
- This money, $41,500 in all, is now on deposit with George Barker, No. 63 Battery.

Very respectfully,
HENRY DUNSTER,
AGENTS ROBINSON,
LOSS CARRIS.
P. S.—Bills will be arranged by Mr. George Barker in small amounts and deposited with any responsible party or institution named by letters.

The Owensboro Messenger has these kind words for Mr. Laffoon: Comparatively unknown in this end of the district, though the acknowledged leader of the bar in Hopkins and Webster counties and for many years considered a power in politics and the law in his immediate section, he came to Daviess county last week, but by an energetic and rapid canvass he has made the acquaintance of hundreds of our citizens, and among them he now has many staunch and enthusiastic supporters. His race in the counties he has canvassed, which caused the tie in the Sebe convention, won for him the respect of the people before they saw him, and, after personal acquaintance with him, the impression that he is a gentleman of ability and character ripens into conviction. If elected to represent this district in Congress Mr. Laffoon would no doubt fill the office with great credit to himself and his constituents.

Up to the hour of going to press Blaine had not given the name of the Kentucky minister who laid himself liable to a fine of $1,000 and three years' confinement in the penitentiary for marrying him without license. The Indianapolis Sentinel now boldly charges Blaine with perjury and proposes to prove it if his case ever comes to trial. Blaine swore on oath that he did not know till the winter of '59-'61 that his alleged marriage in the preceding June was illegal and void. The record-book of Bourbon county shows that Blaine, on October 3, 1859, went on a bond with W. A. McKim, when he (McKim) purchased license to marry Miss Sarah E. Stawford, Mrs. Blaine's sister. That was three months after Blaine's alleged marriage, but as the "obvious reasons" did not then exist, he did not legalize the false marriage with the deluded girl until six months afterwards, and then after secretly marrying her in Pittsburgh, he permitted her to return alone to her mother in Maine, and he did not go near her until a year later. Does this look like Blaine loved the poor, trusting creature like he pretends that he did, or that his marriage was the voluntary righting of the wrong he had done her? In his vain attempt to explain the matter, Blaine has presumed upon the intelligence of the public. Poor fellow! He is an object of pity.

LOUISVILLE VICTORIOUS.

In the Competitive Drill.

Knight Rust's Presentation Speech

The big event of the day Wednesday was the Competitive drill between the K. of P. Divisions. At 11 o'clock A. M. the Grand Lodge Drill corps and visiting Knights, together with the members of Evergreen Lodge formed for the grand parade. Beginning at Spring Street the column, the Grand Lodge being in carriages, the rest on foot, marched through the Principal streets and then to the Fair Grounds. Music was furnished by the Henderson band.

The Drill for the prize banner took place at 3:30 o'clock. The Evansville Division declined to enter and the Louisville and Hopkinsville Divisions were the only contestants. The prize was easily won by the former. Capt. P. A. Fitts, Capt. W. E. Smith and Col. F. A. C. Myrick were the judges.

After the decision the command was drawn up in line and the elegant and costly prize banner formally presented by Knight John O. Rust, of Evergreen Lodge, in the following eloquent and appropriate address:

RUST'S SPEECH.

KNIGHTS OF LOUISVILLE DIVISION, No. 1.—In behalf of Evergreen Lodge, No. 33, it becomes my pleasant duty to present to you this banner, in recognition of your superior excellence of drill.

There was a time, sir, in the dark ages that have passed, when the crude ignorance and sordid depravity of the people gave rise to an order, whose knightly devotion to the "True, the beautiful and the good," was as magnificent as it was necessary. On every side surrounded by opportunities for chivalric deeds and with hearts aglow with a sublime passion of romantic love and with imaginations fired by the transcendent mythologies of the ancients the gallant knight of the middle ages was devoted to the chase of a poetic phantom, which led them from the rugged braveries of the mountain and the wood into the sickly enticements of a masquerade. The great two-handed sword gave place to the dainty, jeweled rapier; the pure and lofty love as the chivalric was changed into the fawning sentimentalism of the charlatan; while the dined armor, that had dashed in the grandest battle deeds of knightlyhood, was laid aside for the gorgeous costumes of a splendid prodigality.

But at this time the world was growing wiser and growing better. The demand for this order, now so wasted by luxury, was no more, and so the swan-like dirge of chivalry was sounded and knightlyhood vanished like the glorious pageantry of a dream.

It is said that on the ground where the battle of Bull Run was fought, pure, delicate flowers might be seen growing out of empty ammunition boxes and a wild rose thrusting up its graceful head through the top of a broken drum and a musing, scarlet verberna peeping out of a fragment of an exploded shell, and just so, I have thought that, out of this magnificent decay of knightlyhood, we have gathered unto ourselves the sweetest, the noblest and the best of those qualities which go to make our Order a blessing, its life beautiful and its manhood glorious. Not only are you brave, as brave as that old Lacedaemonian general, who in the lead of his forces became a target for the Spartan columns and when his body was filled with arrows he, with the dying of a dying hero, plucked them out and fired them back at the enemy, not only as brave as he, I say, but you have a grander bravery, a bravery that will stand out for justice and the right against the bristling opposition of a world's venality. Not only are you courageous, even as the chivalric Bayard, who alone maintained a bridge against two hundred of the enemy until the French could retreat, but you have a nobler courage—

"That highest gift, that seems to lend To man device for a sordid end."

Nor could I, for a moment, suspect that you, like the Knights of old, do not possess that chivalry of heart and gallantry of action that would bring you a worshipper to the feet of her, "who moves a Goddess and looks a Queen," and even still further, I could imagine that, out of the magnanimity of your hearts, you would confess right nobly that—

"You love the sex, and sometimes would reverse The tyrant's wish, that mankind only had One neck, which he with one fell stroke might sever."

Your wish is quite as valid, but not so bad And much more tender on the whole than mine.

It being "I think" that mankind had but one mouth To kiss them all at once from north to south."

Not only brave, courageous and true, but your hearts have been touched by those grand and lofty sentiments of Friendship, Benevolence, Charity, with a friendship—

"That has severed virtue from its base, And such a friendship ends not with life."

With a benevolence, that will not only stoop to relieve the poor and needy, but would even dare to suffer for a brother, and with a charity that will soothe the sorrows and heal the heart-wounds of the lowly and depressed and send the sky-lark of happiness a singing its brightest song of joy into souls that are clouded with the glooms and cares of life.

"Henry IV, immediately before the battle of Ivry, rode along the ranks of his army and showed his soldiers his helmet, surmounted by a plume of white feathers and said with an ardent wish he communicated; 'My children, look here; if your Standards are lost, this is the rallying point, this will lead you to victory and glory.' And so I would say to you, My Brothers, Friendship, Benevolence, Charity, these are your rallying points. No longer on the gaudy trappings and splendid equipage of joust and tourney yours by choice or preference, nor are you led to gallant deeds by promise of the bloodstained glory of the battle, but with unshakable swords, whose gleaming steel will strike for the lowly and depressed and with hearts consecrated anew to these grand purposes of life, gather around your rallying points with all the ardor, all the courage and all the grandeur of your kind and generous knightlyhood.

It is for qualities such as these, that you possess in common with this grand brotherhood of our land, even more than for the feat of arms you have here this day performed, that I am proud to hand to you this banner. Take it, may its floating colors reflect into your hearts the joys and promises of the morning, and, as the great orb of light passes over you in meridional splendor, may it stand out bright in its gaudy plumage to catch a sunburst of glory, and, when the king of day moves on with majestic tread to hold imperial court amidst hesperian constellations, may it still proudly floating, gather into its silken folds the sweetest kisses of the twilight and blooming with the rosy beauty of the evening, flash in victorious grandeur from the opal arches of a jasper sky.

Sir Knight Recorder, J. H. Wilson responded on behalf of Louisville Division No. 1 in a brief and fitting manner.

That Secret Marriage.

[Indianapolis Sentinel.] Blaine claims one secret marriage in Kentucky in June, 1850, and one in Pennsylvania in March, 1851. One and one make two. But when did he do the wife the honor of acknowledging her to the world? We copy here a personal letter, without naming the writer, received last night by the editor of the Sentinel from a Kentuckian of high standing, who knows Blaine well and has no ill-will against him:

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 20.—Dear Sir: I have read Blaine's letter to Phelps. I do not believe his statement of a secret marriage. He left Drennon Springs in December, 1851. After the season closed for vacation in June of that year, he remained at Drennon Springs through the winter season, and passed himself off as a single man; at least no one knew he was married. I understood at one time, and have heard it reliably stated often since, that during the summer of 1851 he courted at least one, and possibly two ladies. This conduct of his can be easily proven. In March of 1851 he was absent at Pittsburg, but returned and stayed through the winter season, and after that tangle until December.

In Texas, one Mr. Randal, a friend of Blaine, has recently been talking to the press in Blaine's behalf. The following is from an interview with him by the Galveston News: "We all," said Mr. Randal, "looked upon Maj. Blaine as a high-toned, honorable and refined gentleman. They have it down wrong," said he, "about his being married in 1851. He was a single man during the entire time of my stay in the institute. I entered it April 6, 1851, and left in February, 1852. He could not have been a married man during this time, because it was commonly understood differently by everybody connected with the school."

"I saw him constantly, and was in a position to know that he could not have been married."

Why was Blaine absent from his wife during the vacation and winter season at Drennon Springs, and why was he passing himself off as unmarried? What will good wives say of this?

Mr. Blaine had no marriage secret in Kentucky, on the 30th of June, 1850, nor at any other time. This is susceptible of proof, not only by the showing we have made of the impossibility of it under the laws of Kentucky, but by statements made by Mr. Blaine himself in 1851 and since, and by a chain of evidence that no possible lying on Mr. Blaine's part can break. The Sentinel will wind that chain about Mr. Blaine in good season.

Lotus Society.

The Lotus Society of Bethel Female College held an unusually interesting meeting in the College parlor last Friday night. The instrumental solo, by Miss Sarah Dagg, was a magnificent rendition of a highly artistic piece of music. The recitation by Miss Ora Rust, was given with a true lucid effect, and the essay, by Miss Annie Smith, and the Lotus Journal, by Miss Carrie Cox, were both the productions. The following was the program:
Music—Maudie Thompson.

Recitation—Fannie Rust.
Music—Ora Rust.

The Ball and Banquet.

The Knights of Pythias Ball and Banquet last night was the most brilliant and largely attended affair of the kind ever given in the city. There were so many visiting ladies and gentlemen present and so many elegantly attired dancers that it would be folly to attempt to give names. The affair was all that could have been expected and if any one present failed to enjoy himself or get enough to eat it was his own fault. The Henderson band discoursed the sweetest of the music, and the "light fantastic" was tipped until 3 o'clock in the morning.

The "Baker Place" on the Palmyra road, two miles south of Hopkinsville, was sold for cash this week by Miss Clem Buckner to Mr. Fritz Melkie, a German farmer, of Lebanon, Dodge county, Wis., who had been induced to move in this section with his family, four weeks ago by the efforts of Rev. F. L. Braun, of the Lutheran Emigrant Mission.

Winsome little Katie Putnam is charming audiences that are increasing every night. Tuesday night she presented "Cliff of the Regiment," and last night "The Little Detective." In both plays she captivated her audiences by her excellent acting. Her support is good and the entertainment will be different every night throughout the week. To-night one of her specialties "Leona; the Madeup," will be played. Those who attend will certainly be entertained and delighted.

The Grand Lodge concluded its work yesterday morning and adjourned to meet at Paris, one year hence.

P. L. C. cures sick headache and dyspepsia. Sold by Gish & Garner, J. R. Armistead and Hopper & Son.

Elegant line of Diamond and other styles of engagement and wedding rings at Howe's, our leading Jeweler.

An immense lot of fine diamonds, clocks, watches, jewelry, silverware, spectacles, Knights of Pythias pins and badges, &c., just received at M. D. Kelly's.

The attendance Wednesday was better than it has been for many years on the first day. It is estimated that 1000 or 1200 people were present.

We learn that Miss Hannah, the daughter of our worthy citizen, Mr. Joseph Fry, became engaged on the 23rd inst., to Mr. David Grimbier, of Roanoke, Va.

Miss Lillie McClellan, of St. Louis, for who has been visiting friends here some time, was married Wednesday at the Episcopal church to Mr. T. R. Tremaine, of St. Louis.

We ask the co-operation of our friends in collecting items for this column in our daily this week. Persons having friends visiting them will confer a favor upon us by sending in their names.

Mr. Henry F. Hammeck and Miss Mattie Bush, daughter of Mr. E. P. Bush, of Roaring Springs, were married Wednesday at 8 o'clock, in the Christian church at Roaring Springs.

Visitors to the Fair must be sure to visit Howe's Jewelry Palace. If you don't you will miss the greatest attraction in Hopkinsville; you will not see another jewelry store equal to it soon.

Mr. J. D. McPherson sent up a mammoth paper balloon from the front of his store Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock in honor of the visiting Knights. The ascension was a decided success.

The Hopkinsville Fire company turned out in uniform Wednesday and exhibited the new city engine in the amphitheatre at the Fair. Hopkinsville has just cause to be proud of her fire company.

The Annual Fair Hop will be held at the Rink to-morrow night. It will be one of the pleasantest ever held in the city. Many visiting young ladies will be present. Tickets for sale to gentlemen at Howe's Jewelry Store.

G. E. Galtner, the druggist, whose headquarters are in the Howe building, has the best facilities for filling prescriptions in the city. His drugs are all fresh, and his many years of experience, have made him an expert as a pharmacist. Call and see him.

There are so many visitors and strangers in the city that it is impossible to mention the names of more than a few. We are kept so busy that it is impossible for us to give this department the attention we would like to.

When you come to the Fair bring along an extra $2.00 to subscribe for the Semi-Weekly South Kentuckian, which gives you the news twice a week in addition to a ticket in our free distribution of prizes, which take place Saturday.

Everyone should call in to see G. E. Galtner, the druggist, while visiting the Fair, as he has the nicest and most complete drug store in the city, which is supplied with an elegant line of toilet articles, books, etc. He can also furnish you the finest smoking cigar to be found anywhere.

Prof. W. H. Hook, who has taught the school at Faulkner's school house for several sessions, will begin the fall session Monday the 13th inst. Prof. Hook is a capable and experienced teacher and a cultured and courteous gentleman who possesses the best requisites of a competent educator.

A special premium was given yesterday to Mr. A. M. Henry's fine twelve horse power Rumsey Traction engine. Mr. Henry had an expert to exhibit it, and it was propelled by steam with more ease than most teams could be made to pull it. It was run around inside and outside of the ring to the wonder and admiration of those who had never seen a machine of the kind propelled by steam.

Knight Bryan Hopper, commander in charge of the parade, was prostrated by a sunstroke Wednesday just as the procession reached the Fair Grounds. Physicians were fortunately on the ground and he was restored to consciousness in half an hour. He was taken home and soon recovered so much that he was pronounced out of danger. He will probably be able to be out by to-day. Mr. Hopper is a very popular and worthy young gentleman and his many friends are sincerely glad that the stroke was no worse.

A Sound Precedent.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

A Connecticut Judge did a thing recently that might be imitated with advantage by courts in general. In a suit for divorce on the ground of adultery the facts were clearly proven; whereupon the Judge, instead of granting the divorce, directed the Prosecuting Attorney to bring action for the crime thus disclosed—and the result was that the guilty parties were convicted and duly sentenced. The divorce business would be materially lessened if a policy of this practical and wholesome kind could be inaugurated throughout the country.

The counties are now busy trotting out candidates for Equalizer of taxes for this district and it seems that there is to be a lively contest. Union county presents Mr. Tom B. Young for the office and the Local says of him:

"He is a practical farmer and business man; he is acquainted with the value of land and other property in this district; he is practical, honest, energetic and thorough-going in the discharge of any duty. Union county commends him to the district as a man in every way adapted for the satisfactory discharge of the duties of the office."

Hancock county brings forward Capt. Murray Brown. His home paper says:

"We take genuine pleasure in presenting Capt. Brown to the people of this district as a man eminently fitted for the position which his partial friends have urged him to seek."

One of the conspicuous traits of his character is its firmness. He is firm in his friendships and firm in the discharge of any official trust; and especially is he firm in his adherence to the principles of that Democracy which he believes is the heaven of our political institutions."

Mr. Young is a Lallion man and Capt. Brown is a supporter of Clay.

Notwithstanding that M. D. Kelly has all the best appliances for fitting spectacles to the failing eye, it's very seldom that he has to resort to instruments, as his long experience and skill enables him to tell what is best suited in almost every case and on the first trial without the aid of instruments.

A fight occurred at the Fair Grounds Wednesday afternoon between two toy balloon men. One of them had bought the right to sell the balloons and the other undertook to trespass upon his right and a fight ensued. They were quickly separated and no harm was done except that in the fight their balloons escaped and ascended into the sky. The police promptly took the delinquents into custody.

One of the most attractive articles on exhibition at the Fair is a finely finished Excelsior Wagon. It was made under the direction of Mr. E. M. Whitlow, foreman for Forbes & Bro., the work being done by Mr. S. W. Madden and the ironing by Ed. Robinson, col. The wagon would win a blue ribbon at almost any Fair. It is probably the finest two horse wagon ever seen in this part of the country, and the makers have done themselves much credit in making it. It is painted and filled in a most artistic manner and the greatest beauty about it is that it is as durable and substantial as it is handsome and attractive to the eye.

There is much guessing as to the meaning of the letters "F. C. B." which are seen everywhere and on everything almost. For the information of the curious, we will divulge the secret meaning of the letters, provided nobody will tell on us. When displayed in front of a grocery, they mean "Fresh County Butter," when before a saloon they stand for "Fine Cool Beer," those in the banquet hall mean "First Class Banquet," on the arch the large letters are put there for the benefit of the ladies and mean "Female Curiosity Baited." There are many other meanings but these will do for the present.

The city is elaborately decorated with Pythian flags and emblems and wreaths and tangles of evergreens and flowers. The grand arch is magnificent to behold. It is thirty feet high and spans Main, just north of Spring street. It is covered with cedar and decorated with hundreds of flags. All of the houses on Main street, with hardly an exception, are adorned with flags and cedar, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. The city has never seen anything like the display. Everywhere the "Blue, Yellow and Red," emblematic colors of the order, are seen flaunting in the breezes and the cabalistic letters "P. C. B." are seen on thousands of bright colored flags and in triangles of evergreens and flowers.
